Wood County Requesting Community Feedback on Public Transportation

Wood County, WI – Wood County is studying whether a public transportation system would benefit the community. The Public Transportation Feasibility Study will explore transportation options for residents, workers, students, and visitors. The study will help determine whether public transportation is a good fit for Wood County, what the service could look like, and how it could work.

They need your help to inform the future of public transportation! By completing this survey, you will provide the project team with important information that will help shape the design, service hours, and fares of a future transportation service.

The survey is available in SurveyMonkey at the following links:

English Survey: www.surveymonkey.com/r/WoodTransit
